

Abstract

The Chern-Weil theory has played a fundamental role in geometry and topology. In this expository talk, I will start with Chern classes and discuss their curvature representatives, then I will discuss their related transgression and some of their applications to complex geometry. I will also report some more recent results on their equivariant extensions.